Question of the Day: What is Pediatric Multi-system Inflammatory Syndrome (sometimes called PIMS), and is it connected to COVID-19? (SOURCE: www.HealthyChildren.Org)

- You may have heard news reports about a possible connection between COVID-19 and a serious health condition in children currently called Pediatric Multi-system Inflammatory Syndrome (sometimes called PIMS).
- Pediatric multisystem inflammatory syndrome is a new health condition appearing in children in New York City (NYC) and elsewhere. Some doctors think the condition is related to having coronavirus disease 2019 (COVID-19), but the connection is still not clear.
- We are watching this very carefully and trying to learn all that we can about it. Scientists around the world are working hard to understand this syndrome and how best to treat it.
- While Pediatric Multi-system Inflammatory Syndrome sounds frightening, the American Academy of Pediatrics reminds parents that this condition is very rare.

Marine Corps Air Station Yuma

Effective April 6, 2020 and until further notice the Trusted Traveler Program is cancelled. This is an additional safety measure that #MCASYuma is taking in order to help stop the spread of #COVID19.

What this means is that essential personnel that do not have common access card (CAC) and Department of Defense (DOD) identification cards are not authorized to come aboard the base without going to the Pass and Registration office and obtaining a base access pass. Essential personnel may obtain base access by providing the appropriate paperwork to the Pass and Registration Office during working hours.

ALL VISITORS will be required to provide justification for needing access to the installation and will not be granted access to the base simply because they know someone that has a CAC or DOD identification card who will be sponsoring/escorting them aboard the base.

As of April 6, 2020, sponsoring a visitor aboard MCAS Yuma that does not have a CAC or DOD identification card is strictly prohibited unless approved at the Pass and Registration Office.

YUMA PROVING GROUND
